Political Luncheon

The Quebec election results: Et maintenant?

Special Introduction by:
Conrad Black

Featured Speaker:
Adam Daifallah

Join Adam Daifallah - co-founder and the Managing Partner at HATLEY Strategy Advisors, a Montreal-based public affairs firm - for this Political Luncheon.

Before co-founding HATLEY, Adam practiced law at the Montreal office of Norton Rose Fulbright (then Ogilvy Renault). Previously, he sat on the editorial board of the National Post in Toronto and was Washington, D.C. correspondent of The New York Sun. He is co-author of two books on Canadian politics. A native of Peterborough, he is a past president of the Ontario PC Campus Association. Adam is a law graduate of Université Laval, has a BA (honours) in history and political studies from Queen's University and was a Sauvé Scholar at McGill University. He is a member of the Quebec Bar.

In the voluntary sector, Adam is Chairman of the Canadian Taxpayers Federation, a director of the Montreal Cancer Institute and the Schmeelk Canada Foundation, a member of the Management Committee of the Mount Royal Club, and a member of the Advocacy Committee of the Quebec Chapter of the Institute of Corporate Directors. He is a fellow of the Montreal Economic Institute and of the Royal Canadian Geographical Society. A passionate golfer, he serves as a director of Golf Canada and sits on its Heritage Services Committee. He is also a member of SCOREGolf Magazine's Top 100 courses in Canada ranking panel.
